A tragic accident robs 4 year old Lily of her mother (Hilarie Burton) and leaves her in the rough and ready care of her father T.Ray (Paul Bettany) and their housekeeper, Rosaleen (Jennifer Hudson). A decade later, in 1964, despite recently introduced equal rights legislation, blacks are still in danger, and after a nasty confrontation with some racist whites in town, Lily and Rosaleen run away. A memento of her mother's guides Lily to a house in a South Carolina town, where they are taken in by local beekeeper and honey maker, August Boatwright (Queen Latifah) and her sisters June (Alicia Keys) and May (Sophie Okonedo). Here, Lily discovers the secret lives of bees and a few other important treasures to help her overcome her sense of being unlovable.
